Alec Verch

is an articling student at Lenczner Slaght.

Alec completed his JD at the Lincoln Alexander School of Law where he co-founded Lincoln OUTLaws and the Lincoln Alexander Labour and Employment Law Society.

During his first year, Alec competed in the Canadian National Negotiation Competition and was awarded Best Process Management and Analysis Skills. Alec was also an oralist in the Philip C. Jessup International Law Moot Court Competition.

In addition to mooting, Alec led a student research initiative on young workers' rights which culminated with a report that was submitted to Ontario's Workforce Recovery Advisory Committee. In his final year, Alec completed his professional placement at the Ontario Court of Justice where he researched complex points of law, edited judgments, and gained insight into judicial decision-making.

Prior to law school, Alec interned with Scholars at Risk, an international network of higher education institutions dedicated to the promotion of academic freedom, and was selected to attend the 71st session of the UN General Assembly as a Canadian Youth Delegate. Aside from his passion for advocacy, Alec is a musical theatre enthusiast and an active member of Toronto's queer sports leagues.
