
Construction & Infrastructure Litigation Associate

Lenczner Slaght is widely recognized as Canada's leading litigation firm. Because litigation is all we do, our clients benefit from focused expertise and trial-ready thinking.

For more than three decades, we have built a premier construction and infrastructure litigation practice. We act for owners, developers, contractors, subcontractors, architects, engineers, lenders, and underwriters in high-stakes disputes arising from projects that shape skylines and infrastructure across Canada and internationally – from complex residential developments to multi-billion-dollar transit, energy, and public works projects.

If you want to litigate the cases that define the industry – this is where you do it.

THE OPPORTUNITY:

We are seeking a litigator qualified to practice in Ontario with 2-5 years of experience in construction and infrastructure disputes.

This role is designed for lawyers who want more than document management and back-office research. At Lenczner Slaght, associates are advocates. You will:

- Take ownership of meaningful components of complex files
- Appear in court and arbitration proceedings
- Conduct examinations and argue motions
- Work directly with sophisticated clients and leading experts
- Develop strategy alongside some of Canada's most respected trial lawyers

Our construction litigators are regularly involved in high-value arbitrations and complex litigation that set precedents and shape risk allocation in the industry. You will not wait years for real advocacy experience – you will build it here.

WHAT WE'RE LOOKING FOR:

You are ambitious, intellectually rigorous, and motivated by high-performance environments. You thrive on responsibility and take pride in precision.

We are seeking candidates with:

- Demonstrated experience in construction and infrastructure litigation
- Strong understanding of construction industry practices
- Familiarity with lien claims and procedures
- The ability to manage complex, document-intensive files
- Excellent judgment, organization, and attention to detail

- A client-first mindset and commitment to exceptional service
- The ability to work independently while contributing meaningfully to a collaborative team
- Real estate litigation experience is an asset but not required.

WHY LENCZNER SLAGHT:

At Lenczner Slaght, associates develop faster because they do more. We believe advocacy skills are built in hearings, not in theory.

Our partners are consistently ranked among the top litigators in Canada and are deeply invested in mentorship. We combine elite advocacy with structured development, real responsibility, and a culture that expects excellence – and supports you in achieving it.
