COVID-19 reaction: Law offices shutter and solo litigators try to stay afloat with remote work

Tom Curry is quoted on how we are doing our part to flatten the COVID-19 curve as a firm.

“While we remain at your service, we will be protecting our team and the community by observing the best practices recommended by global experts. This means bending the curve and we will do our part by working remotely,” said Tom Curry, noting that the lawyers would be filing statements of claim electronically to preserve limitation periods.
