Lenczner Slaght Welcomes Andrea Wheeler as a New Partner

Canada's leading litigation firm is proud to welcome an exceptional and strong advocate to its Partnership.

Andrea is committed to excellence in advocacy and has the knowledge, experience and drive to solve our clients' toughest problems. When navigating complex disputes, clients and colleagues welcome Andrea's business acumen, analytical skills, attention to detail, clear and persuasive written advocacy, and above all, her keen judgment. As a new Partner, she will significantly contribute to our firm's success.

Managing Partner, Tom Curry, says: "Our success depends on our ability to attract, train and promote the future leaders of the Bar. We know that Andrea has the qualities that meet our high expectations and will add enormously to our ability to deliver the results our clients expect, every day."

Andrea represents clients in complex and high-profile commercial disputes, construction and infrastructure matters, professional liability hearings, and medical malpractice trials. Andrea provides real-time strategic advice to private and public sector clients and appears before all levels of court in Ontario, administrative tribunals and in private arbitrations.

Prior to joining Lenczner Slaght, Andrea was a federal Crown at the Department of Justice where she worked on anti-organized crime and drug trafficking prosecutions. Andrea also worked as a research psychologist and published numerous peer-reviewed articles in leading academic journals.

Congratulations, Andrea!
