

Sana Halwani
416-865-3733
shalwani@litigate.com

December 5, 2024

Playing catch-up on copyright

In the latest issue of CBA National Magazine, Sana Halwani discusses why her clients, Canada's biggest news media companies, filed a joint lawsuit against OpenAI, the creator of ChatGPT, and what they are seeking from this action.

“OpenAI has capitalized on the commercial success of its GPT models, building a suite of GPT-based products and services, and raising significant capital—all without obtaining a valid licence from any of the news media companies,” Sana Halwani, partner at Lenczner Slaght LLP and lead counsel on the claim said via email.

“[The outlets] simply want to be compensated for what OpenAI has taken and to stop OpenAI from continuing to take their content without authorization,” Halwani added.

Continue reading: <https://nationalmagazine.ca/en-ca/articles/law/hot-topics-in-law/2024/playing-catch-up-on-copyright>