Clients and peers had only positive feedback regarding our expert litigators:

Global Elite Thought Leader Peter Griffin is “one of the best litigators in Canada” who peers state is “a go-to choice for large firms when conflicts arise”. His active practice sees him involved in insolvencies and securities disputes.

Alan J Lenczner QC maintains a distinguished reputation in the Canadian market with sources rating him highly for his work regarding professional liability and construction litigation, among other areas.

Tom Curry comes highly rated in the field as a standout trial and appellate litigator. His practice covers a range of areas including IP disputes and professional liability issues.

William McDowell is an impressive practitioner with more than 30 years' experience in complex dispute resolution. Among his many areas of expertise are libel, public law and general commercial litigation.

Ronald G Slaght QC garners widespread praise from respondents to our research this year. His enviable practice sees him represent clients on commercial litigation matters in the real estate and medical sectors.

Shara Roy is commended by peers and clients for her litigation skill, excelling in a range of commercial matters as well as shareholders disputes. Her abilities in the field are noted by sources who describe her as “very practical, responsive, strategic and smart”.

Matthew Sammon is an excellent litigator with wide-ranging experience as a trial lawyer, representing clients across the gamut of industries. He has specific expertise in medical malpractice cases and employment matters.

Brian Kolenda is a specialist in civil litigation, including fraud, negligence and defamation.
