Introduction

The earliest version of this database was built by Professor Benjamin Alarie and Andrew Green of the University of Toronto Faculty of Law. Under their supervision, an initial version of this database was coded, and they used that data to publish a series of articles in the late 2000s and early 2010s. While they had intended to make their dataset publicly available, it never came to fruition.

In 2020, Professors Alarie and Green graciously provided a copy of their existing database and documentation to Paul-Erik Veel, a lawyer practicing at Lenczner Slaght and an Adjunct Professor at the University of Toronto Faculty of Law. He and Katie Glowach (also a lawyer Lenczner Slaght), with the assistance of others, then updated the database to include Supreme Court of Canada decisions through the end of 2021. They also validated and cleaned earlier data, added and removed particular variables, and cleaned up the documentation. The database will be updated and maintained by Lenczner Slaght going forward.

This database includes information about each reported decisions of the Supreme Court of Canada from 1953 onward. It is intended to include every decision of the Supreme Court of Canada on its website, which is presently at scc-csc.lexum.com. The authors of this database hope that this database will provide a useful resource for academics and practicing lawyers alike who are interested in the decisions and judges of the Supreme Court of Canada.

The vast majority of the decisions contained in the database are appeals. However, the Supreme Court also sometimes reports decisions on motions. To the extent these motion decisions warranted inclusion on the Supreme Court's website, they are included in this database. By contrast, routine application or motion decisions that do not warrant reasons that are included on the Supreme Court's website—such as the outcomes of most intervention motions and most applications for leave to appeal—are not included in this database.

The intention is that the basic datapoint in this database is the appeal. All other datapoints are associated, ultimately, with a single appeal. Note that an appeal is different from a decision. In a minority of cases, the Supreme Court renders decisions in multiple appeals involving different parties in the same decision. (See for example R v Ahmad, 2020 SCC 11). In those situations, despite there being only one decision, there are multiple appeals that are disposed of in that single decision, each potentially having its own history and outcome. In those cases, there are multiple entries in the database that would be associated with a single decision.

For cases from approximately 1980 onward, coding the database on an appeal-basis rather than a decision-basis was easy to implement, as the Supreme Court of Canada has assigned a unique file number to each appeal from approximately 1980 onward. However, decisions that pre-date 1980 do not have easily available unique identifiers for each appeal disposed of in a decision, so coverage of all appeals prior to 1980 may be imperfect. For cases that pre-date 1980, the goal remains to have separate datapoints for separate appeals, though in cases in which it was not discernible whether there multiple appeals from a review of the decision, there will generally only be a single entry in the database for that decision.

A list of the variables coded in this database, along with detailed definitions of those variables, follows. The variables were initially modeled after the American Supreme Court Database.¹

However, there are many important deviations from the approach employed in the American Supreme Court Database. A user of our database who is intimately familiar with the American Supreme Court Database should not assume that the approach in our database is identical and should instead review the documentation in this coding manual.

Our database was built as a relational database, and the Excel export of that data we make available online has seven separate tabs containing data. Some of the variables contained in the database exist solely to relate data in one table to data in another table and otherwise have no independent significance.

For certain variables, this database contains both an American version and a Canadian version of the variable. The American variables, where they exist, are intended to be consistent with the variable definition set out in the Codebook (referred to herein as the US Codebook) of the American Supreme Court Database, Version 2020 Release 1.

Where both American and Canadian versions of a variable exist, American variables are identified by a “US” suffix at the end of the variable name, while Canadian variables are identified by a “Can” suffix at the end of the variable name. Variables followed by the “US” suffix are coded based on categories found in the American Supreme Court database. The goal of providing the US variables in our database is to allow for some comparison with the American Supreme Court Database. However, many US variables apply only imperfectly in the Canadian context. Coders have done their best to select the appropriate values for all variables, but the coding of US variables in particular may be imperfect. Where the goal is to analyze data in a manner that does not require any comparability to the American Supreme Court Database, we recommend using the Canadian variables rather than the equivalent US variables.

The data in this database, like all databases, is imperfect. All of the data was coded by humans, and humans can make mistakes. We expect to correct errors that are identified in each sequential release of this database. However, undoubtedly errors will remain.

To the extent that you identify an error in the database, please let the authors know by emailing Paul-Erik Veel at pveel@litigate.com.

For certain variables, there may be legitimate disagreement as to how a variable should be coded, particularly with more granular variables. For example, in the variables pertaining to issues, the variable issueAreaCan contains 21 high-level options for issues, while the variable issueCan contains hundreds of more granular issues. The coding of issueAreaCan is generally likely to attract little controversy in most cases, while the coding of issueCan in any particular case may be the subject of legitimate disagreement.

As a matter of convention in this coding manual, variables are written in bold typeface, while values for variables are written in italic typeface.

The full citation for the database is Paul-Erik Veel, Katie Glowach, Benjamin Alarie, and Andrew Green, Lenczner Slaght Supreme Court of Canada Database, Release 2022.01. Available at: <https://www.supremecourtdatabase.com/>. The database will be updated periodically at the website listed. The first four digits of the year indicate the year of the release, while the last two digits after the period indicate the release version of that particular year.

Finally, this database is made available with all of the above caveats in mind. Neither the authors nor Lenczner Slaght assume any liability for any errors in the database or any use of the database, and none of them make any representations, warranties, or undertakings regarding the accuracy or completeness of the data in the database. While they hope to update the database from time to time to improve its accuracy, they do not undertake to do so, either at any particular time intervals or at all. By downloading and/or using the database and/or the coding manual, you acknowledge these terms of use and release the authors and Lenczner Slaght LLP from any liability relating to your use of the database, including but not limited to any damages that you might suffer as a result of any errors in the database.

Variable List

Case Info

1) primaryCaseID

This field is automatically generated to identify unique records for each appeal. The numbers in this field are not necessarily sequential (there may be gaps), and they do not always correspond chronologically to the release dates of cases. While field is used to identify unique records for each appeal, it should not be analyzed nor given any other significance.

2) caseName

The style of cause. For example, in the citation R v Larche, [2006] 2 SCR 762, 2006 SCC 56, “R v Larche” is the case name.

The case name should always be listed as the case name the Supreme Court identified for the case. If there are multiple cases that were decided in the same decision, the style of cause for the particular decision at issue should be added in square brackets: for example, R v Ahmad [R v Williams].

3) docketID

The file number given to all cases by the Supreme Court. However, it is only available back to approximately 1980. This is available in the decision or on the SCC website.

One decision may have multiple docket IDs. Each docket ID represents a separate appeal and should be coded as a separate entry in the database. Most variables are coded based on the particular docket ID. However, some variables will be identical because they pertain to the decision (eg, neutralCitation, DateArgument).

4) neutralCitation

This is available only for cases after 2000 (eg, 2001 SCC 1). It identifies cases based on the court rather than any particular published reporter.

5) scrCitation

This is the Supreme Court Reporter citation.

6) dateArgument

The date the hearing took place. If more than one date is specified, the latest of the dates is used. If there was no oral argument, this should be left blank.

7) dateReasons

The date the reasons for decision were rendered. The original date of the decision is used, even if later revision dates are shown.

8) dateDecisionGiven

The date judgment was rendered (ie, the date the Court decided the outcome of the case). This date will in the vast majority of cases be the same as the date reasons are released. The default value of this field will auto-populate by default to the date the reasons were released. dateDecisionGiven will differ from dateReasons in the circumstances where the Court renders its decision with reasons to follow.

9) chiefJustice

The Chief Justice of Canada as of the date the oral hearing took place. The codes associated with each justice are set out in Appendix C.

Party Info

Most cases will have a single appellant and respondent. Multiple appellant and respondent parties can be added. However, not every party to a case will be coded separately. Each “party” coded in the database really represents a party type. Thus, if there are multiple persons accused of a crime together, they are not each given a separate party entry, unless there is something exceptionally significant that merits doing so.

For Federal references directly to the Supreme Court, the Federal government is treated as the Appellant, and the Respondent fields should be left blank.

For motions and applications that originate at the Supreme Court that are included in the database, the Appellant fields should be coded with the moving party/applicant’s information, while the Respondent field should be coded with the respondent’s information.

In cases in which there is a cross-appeal on a single file number at the Supreme Court, Appellant/Respondent to the Cross-Appeal should be treated as the Appellant for the purposes of these fields. In cases in which separate appeals are brought by opposing parties on two different file numbers, they should be coded as separate entries.

10) appellantType

A party’s status as appellant is generally indicated at the beginning of the decision. The approach to this variable is similar to that for petitionerUS, with the distinction that the Canadian list of categories is to be used. The list of these fields is contained at Appendix B. Only one type is to be coded for each appellant. The objective is to code the type that most accurately and specifically describes their role in the litigation at hand.

In many cases, multiple party types can be used to describe a party.

Example 1:

A post-secondary student has been sued by a property owner for vandalism as a result of taking part in an Occupy protest. This person could be coded as “Student”, “Protester, Demonstrator, Picketer, or Pamphleteer”, or even “Voter”. However, for purposes of this database they will be coded as “Protester...” because this is the most relevant information.

Example 2:

A large corporation makes allegations against an environmental organization in an effort to discredit it. The environmental organization sues in libel. It could be coded as “Injured Person”, “Charitable Organization”, “Non-profit Organization” or “Environmental Organization”. “Injured Person” most closely describes its role in the litigation. However, “Environmental Organization” will be coded because otherwise that information is lost; the plaintiff indicator (described below) will indicate the injured party within this context.

The general rule is to code the value that most specifically describes a party’s role in the litigation. However, there are many cases in which doing so will result in losing important information, as in Example 2. The coder must use their judgement in deciding which type should be coded in a particular situation.

Specificity remains the underlying principle throughout. For example, when it comes to coding Crown corporations, the more specific category should be used; for instance, HydroQuebec would be coded as a public utility rather than the more general Crown corporation. Ministries which no longer exist should be coded as close as possible to their modern-day equivalent, and finally those accused who have been convicted on some counts, but not all, would still be coded as convicted.

In prosecutions under the Criminal Code, the Crown should generally be coded as 140101 – Her Majesty the Queen. The accused should generally be coded as 200201 – Person accused or suspected of crime or regulatory offence. 200203 – Person convicted of crime and/or regulatory offence should be reserved for circumstances where an individual has already been convicted and all appeals relating to that conviction have been exhausted, and that individual is involved in further proceedings after their conviction is confirmed.

In Federal References, the Appellant should be coded as Her Majesty the Queen. The Respondent should be coded as 0 – N/A.

While the goal in coding both Appellants and Respondents is specificity, individuals analyzing this data should use significant caution before drawing conclusions regarding very specific categorizations. As an example of the potential problems that can arise, note that the general coding for a person accused of a crime is 200201 – Person accused or suspected of crime or regulatory offence. However, the coding palette also contains 200207 – Aboriginal Person accused or suspected of crime or regulatory offence and 200213 – Member of visible minority accused or suspected of crime or regulatory offence. These more specific designations should be coded whenever the decision provides information that would make that more specific designation applicable. However, the Supreme Court decision often will not contain information that would allow one to code the more specific designation, in which case the more general designation will be coded. As a result, data analysis at a very granular level should be approached with extreme caution.

11) appellantCategory

The broad category of legal entity into which the appellant(s) fall(s). The possible values are:

0. N/A
1. Federal Government
2. Provincial Government
3. Local Government (Municipal)
4. Individual
5. Corporation, organization or association (includes non-profits)
6. Foreign Nation

Where a party is stated as an individual carrying on business as a corporation, it is classified as a corporation. However, simply adopting a business name and carrying on business under that name does not create a legal corporation. A person in the latter situation should not be coded as a corporation.

In prosecutions under the Criminal Code, the Crown should generally be coded as 2 – Federal Government.

12) appellantProvince

If the appellant is a government entity, the name of the province (if it is a provincial government entity or a city/town/region) or “federal” (if it is a federal government entity) is coded. If the appellant is a private party, this variable should be coded 0 – N/A.

The options are:

0. N/A
1. Alberta
2. British Columbia
3. Manitoba
4. New Brunswick
5. Newfoundland and Labrador
6. Nova Scotia
7. Ontario
8. Prince Edward Island
9. Quebec

10. Saskatchewan
11. Northwest Territories
12. Nunavut
13. Yukon
14. Federal

13) petitionerUS

The petitioner, referred to as the appellant in Canada, is the party asking that the Supreme Court review the case. Petitioners are categorized according to the list of petitioner types provided in the US Codebook (this list is reproduced in Appendix A). The guidelines above under appellantType can be used to do this. The guidelines in the US Codebook may also be useful.

In prosecutions under the Criminal Code, the Crown should generally be coded as 27 – United States. The accused should generally be coded as 100 – Person accused, suspected, or indicted of crime. 126 – Person convicted of crime should be reserved for circumstances where an individual has already been convicted and all appeals relating to that conviction have been exhausted, and that individual is involved in further proceedings after their conviction is confirmed.

14) appellantWasPlaintiff

This indicates whether the appellant was the plaintiff in the initial action (in a court, not an administrative tribunal). The possible values are:

0. Appellant was not the Plaintiff in a civil court proceeding
1. Appellant was the Plaintiff in a civil court proceeding

The concept of being a plaintiff only applies in civil proceedings. Where the matter is a criminal proceeding or the matter originated in an administrative tribunal, this should be coded as 0 – Appellant was not the Plaintiff in a civil court proceeding. Similarly, both parties in judicial review applications or tax court proceedings should be coded as 1 – Appellant was the Plaintiff in a civil court proceeding.

15) appellantID

This field is automatically generated to identify unique records for each appellant. As noted above, there may be a one to many relationship between appeals and appellants. The numbers in this field are not necessarily sequential (there may be gaps). While field is used to identify unique records for each appellant, it should not be analyzed nor given any other significance.

16) respondentType

This is coded in the same way as appellantType, but for the respondent(s).

17) respondentCategory

This is coded in the same way as appellantCategory, but for the respondent(s).

18) respondentProvince

This is coded in the same way as appellantProvince, but for the respondent(s).

19) respondentUS

This is coded in the same way as petitionerUS, but for the respondent(s).

20) respondentWasPlaintiff

This is coded similarly to appellantWasPlaintiff, but for the respondent(s).

21) respondentID

This field is automatically generated to identify unique records for each respondent. As noted above, there may be a one to many relationship between appeals and respondents. The numbers in this field are not necessarily sequential (there may be gaps). While field is used to identify unique records for each respondent, it should not be analyzed nor given any other significance.

Case History

22) caseOrigin

This variable indicates the court where the case was first heard. In the vast majority of cases, this is NOT the court whose judgment a party is appealing to the Supreme Court (generally a provincial or federal court of appeal). That court is indicated by the caseSource variable below. See Appendix D for a complete listing of court numbers, including courts that no longer exist.

Occasionally, neither the decision of the Supreme Court nor that of the appellate court's will indicate specifically the origin of the case. The appellate court's decision may mention the name of the trial judge involved, which can then be used to find the case's origin. Where the case's origin has not been reported nor deduced, 99 - Unknown (trial court not listed or cannot be found) is coded.

Other common situations to take note of are:

- Provincial references: the value for caseOrigin may be identical to the value for caseSource
- Federal reference and motions originating in the Supreme Court: caseOrigin should be coded as 0 – N/A.
- Prothonotary: Generally coded as Federal Court. Older cases may be listed as Federal Court (Trial Division).

In the late nineties, the Ontario courts were merged. The Thomson Carswell book lists the Ontario Court (General Division) to have ended in 1996 while the Ontario Court of Justice to have started in 1999, leaving a gap of about three years where the case's origin is unclear. As a coding protocol, it was decided that for cases originating from the Ontario Court (General Division) in 1997 or 1998, this was coded as having come from 7412 - Ontario Court (General Division) (1990-1996), despite the inconsistency in dates.

23) provinceofOrigin

This variable indicates the province where the case originated. This variable is automatically filled, although it needs to be done manually where the trial court is unknown.

The options are:

0. N/A
1. Alberta
2. British Columbia
3. Manitoba
4. New Brunswick
5. Newfoundland and Labrador
6. Nova Scotia
7. Ontario
8. Prince Edward Island
9. Quebec
10. Saskatchewan
11. Northwest Territories
12. Nunavut
13. Yukon

14. Federal

24) caseSource

The court whose decision was appealed to the Supreme Court. As with caseOrigin, this variable should be coded in the form of a 4-digit number. Possible values are listed in Appendix D.

For Federal reference and motions originating in the Supreme Court, caseSource should be coded as 0 – N/A.

25) adminAgency

The name of the administrative decision maker is coded (eg, Immigration and Refugee Board, labour arbitrator, etc). Drop down populates alphabetically based on existing values in database. New values not on list can be manually entered.

This field should only be filled in cases of judicial review of an administrative decision maker's decision where multiple decision makers have been involved in the case, the name of the administrative decision maker whose decision is actually being reviewed is coded, NOT the name of the first administrative decision maker to hear the case.

Where an administrative decision maker was not involved, this should be coded as 0 – N/A.

Note that "Standing Court Martial" is considered an administrative tribunal, rather than a court, for this database (see R v Szczerbaniwicz, 2010 SCC 15). Furthermore, the judicial review of a minister or municipality's exercise of discretion, decision-making power, jurisdiction, etc along with whether a by-law, etc is ultra vires their power is also indicated in this field (See Mount Sinai Hospital Center v Quebec (Minister of Health and Social Services), 2001 SCC 41).

26) adminAgencyType

This variable indicates the type of the administrative decision maker (eg, board, tribunal, minister, etc) named under adminAgency. Where an administrative decision maker was not involved, it is coded as 0 – N/A. The possible values are:

0. N/A – No administrative decision-maker involved
1. Administration of justice
2. Aboriginal Affairs
3. Agriculture
4. Arts, culture, heritage, language
5. Business, economics, banking
6. Education, research
7. Health, food, and drugs
8. Human rights, civil rights
9. Immigration, citizenship
10. Industry, manufacturing
11. International affairs
12. Labour, employment
13. Natural resources, environment, energy
14. Public safety, military
15. Taxation

16. Telecommunication
17. Tenant, housing
18. Transportation
19. Other
20. Municipality

27) adminProvince

If the administrative decision maker is provincial, the name of the province is listed. If the matter is federal in nature, then 14 – Federal is chosen. In cases involving municipal boards and councils, the name of province is listed.

The possible values are:

0. N/A
1. Alberta
2. British Columbia
3. Manitoba
4. New Brunswick
5. Newfoundland and Labrador
6. Nova Scotia
7. Ontario
8. Prince Edward Island
9. Quebec
10. Saskatchewan
11. Northwest Territories
12. Nunavut
13. Yukon
14. Federal

28) lowerCourtDisposition

This variable indicates what the disposition of the lower court was. The possible values are as follows:

0. N/A
 - This value should be selected where there was no lower court disposition because the case originated in the Supreme Court (eg, a motion or application brought directly in the Supreme Court or a Federal reference made directly to the Supreme Court).
1. Affirmed
 - Where the appeal was dismissed.
 - This should also be coded where leave is required to appeal to the Court below, and the Court below declines to grant leave, such that the effect is to affirm the judgment of the court at first instance.
2. Reversed

- Where the appeal was allowed.
3. Reversed in part
 - Where the appeal was allowed in part. This should only be coded where the disposition specifically states that the appeal is being allowed in part.
 4. Affirmed and ordered new trial
 - Where the appeal was dismissed and a new trial was ordered. For example, where the court affirms a superior court's order for a new trial in the provincial court.
 5. Reversed and ordered new trial
 - Where the appeal was allowed and a new trial was ordered.
 6. Affirmed and remanded to original decision-maker
 - Where the appeal was dismissed and the case sent back to the original decision-maker (either an administrative body or trial judge). This includes when a criminal case is sent back for sentencing.
 7. Reversed and remanded to original decision-maker
 - Where the appeal was allowed and the case sent back to the original decision-maker. This includes when a criminal case is sent back for sentencing.
 8. Reversed and affirmed in part and remanded to original decision-maker
 - Where the appeal was allowed in part and sent back to the original decision-maker.
 9. Modified
 - Where the Court modified the lower court judgment (eg, altered the type or monetary value of the remedy). This is a rare occurrence and is coded where the appeal has been dismissed but the court has modified the result.
 10. Unusual disposition
 - Where the disposition did not fit into any of the other categories.
 - This option should be selected if the lower court being appealed from was the court of first instance (eg, where the appeal to the Supreme Court is a direct appeal from a Superior Court decision, such as in a publication ban case).
 11. Application, petition or motion granted
 - Where the action was not an appeal of a lower court decision but a motion or action commenced in the court of appeal, or a provincial reference, and was granted.
 12. Application, petition or motion dismissed
 - Where the action was not an appeal of a lower court decision but a motion commenced in the court of appeal, and was dismissed/denied.
 13. Provincial Reference
 14. Federal Reference
 - This option should only be selected in the unusual scenario where there was a Federal Reference to the lower court. If it was a Federal reference directly to the Supreme Court and there was no lower court disposition, 0 – N/A should be selected instead.

Often lower court judges would state "I agree" rather than signing on to the majority's opinion; these statements should not be treated as a concurrence since it lacks additional, substantial reasoning.

Where the action was a motion or other action commenced in the Supreme Court (eg, appeal of registrar's decision to refuse leave, motion to quash for want of jurisdiction, etc.), neither this variable nor its Canadian counterpart (described next), nor the lowerCourtDirection variable should be coded, as the court of appeal did not make any disposition with respect to the precise matter being addressed at the SCC and so coding these would not make sense.

Although administrative tribunals, boards and agencies are not considered courts, this variable can still be coded to indicate whether the court allowed or dismissed an appeal from an administrative agency.

29) lowerCourtDispositionUS

This variable also indicates the disposition of the lower court, but using the set of disposition values from the US Codebook. This value was automatically filled based on the equivalent Canadian variable. The possible values are as follows:

0. N/A
1. Stay, petition or motion granted
2. Affirmed
3. Reversed
4. Reversed and remanded
5. Vacated and remanded
6. Affirmed and reversed (or vacated) in part
7. Affirmed and reversed (or vacated) in part and remanded
8. Vacated
9. Petition denied or appeal dismissed
10. Modify
11. Remand
12. Unusual disposition

30) lowerCourtSplit

This variable indicates whether there was disagreement in the lower court, and if so, what the nature of that disagreement was. The Supreme Court will sometimes mention this in their judgement, particularly if the disagreement is a separate concurrence rather than a dissent. Unless the Supreme Court has indicated that in the lower court there was unanimous agreement or both dissent and concurrence, the lower court judgement must be consulted.

If a lower court's decision is not reported, then whatever is written in the Supreme Court judgment regarding the lower court's decision should guide the coding of lowerCourtSplit. Only if the Supreme Court does not make any reference to the case history and the lower court's decision is not coded will 5 – Unclear be coded.

0. N/A
 - This value should be selected where there was no lower court disposition because the case originated in the Supreme Court (eg, a motion or application brought directly in the Supreme Court), other than Federal references.
1. No Disagreement
 - If the Court of Appeal's decision was unanimous in both reasoning and result.
2. Disagreement – dissent
 - If there was at least one judge who did not agree with the majority in result.

3. Disagreement – concurrence
 - If there was at least one judge who agreed with the majority’s result but not completely with the latter’s reasoning.
4. Disagreement – concurrence and dissent
 - If there was both a dissent and concurrence, as defined above.
5. Unclear
 - This should be selected when no information available from the Supreme Court judgment and the lower court decision has not been reported.

31) lowerCourtDirection

This variable indicates the ideological direction of the lower court’s decision. It should be coded based on the guidelines in Appendix E. In those cases with multiple issues, each issue must be assigned its own direction. The case as a whole is not assigned a direction.

If there was no lower court disposition because the case originated in the Supreme Court (eg, a motion or application brought directly in the Supreme Court, or a Federal Reference, this should be coded 0 – N/A.

32) crossAppeal

If the case includes a cross-appeal at the Supreme Court, this variable is coded as 1 – True. Otherwise, it is coded as 0 – No Cross Appeal.

This option should only be coded as 1 – True if it is a true cross-appeal on the same Supreme Court file number. If each party sought and was granted leave to appeal from the decision below, there are two separate Supreme Court file numbers, and each party is an appellant, they should be coded as two separate matters, rather than as one matter with a cross-appeal.

33) mannerTakingJurisdiction

This variable indicates the way in which a case reached the Supreme Court. A case may be brought to the Supreme Court “as of right,” meaning that the Court had no choice but to hear the appeal, or, a case may be appealed to the Supreme Court “by leave,” meaning that the Court chose to hear the appeal in question.

Generally, this information can be obtained by searching the docket number of a case on the SCC website or alternatively via the link beside the docketID field. Near the top of the entry on that page, it will list whether the appeal was as of right or by leave. Alternatively, the information may be found in the decision itself.

Where the case went up both as of a right and by leave, as of right should be coded. This is because one can expect that the Court is more inclined to give leave when the appellant already has a right to appeal to the Supreme Court.

0. Not applicable or erroneous
 - If the case is not actually an appeal, but merely an application or motion first made in the Supreme Court, then this variable should be coded as 0.
 - If the Supreme Court declares that an appeal that reached them “as of right” does not actually meet the requirements for an appeal “as of right” then this variable will also be coded as 0.
1. As of right – conviction is upheld by the Court of Appeal but there is a dissent
 - The provision as of 2021 on this issue is section 691(1)(a) of the Criminal Code, which provides that “A person who is convicted of an indictable offence and whose conviction is affirmed by the court of appeal may appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada”.

2. As of a right – criminal case where the Court of Appeal reverses acquittal, there is a dissent or where a verdict of guilty is entered
 - A stay of proceedings at the lower court is considered an acquittal.
 - The provision as of 2021 on this issue is section 691(2)(a) and (b) of the Criminal Code, which provides that “A person who is acquitted of an indictable offence other than by reason of a verdict of not criminally responsible on account of mental disorder and whose acquittal is set aside by the court of appeal may appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada (a) on any question of law on which a judge of the court of appeal dissents; (b) on any question of law, if the Court of Appeal enters a verdict of guilty against the person.”
3. As of a right – where the Court of Appeal upholds a verdict of not criminally responsible due to mental disorder (NCR-MD) or where it enters a finding of guilty
 - The provision as of 2021 on this issue is section 692(1) of the Criminal Code, which provides that “A person who has been found not criminally responsible on account of mental disorder and (a) whose verdict is affirmed on that ground by the court of appeal, or (b) against whom a verdict of guilty is entered by the court of appeal under subparagraph 686(4)(b)(ii), may appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.”
4. As of right – appeal by AG from reversal of conviction or upholding of acquittal by court of appeal, in certain cases, where there is a dissent
 - The provision as of 2021 on this issue is section 693(1)(a) of the Criminal Code, “Where a judgment of a court of appeal sets aside a conviction pursuant to an appeal taken under section 675 or dismisses an appeal taken pursuant to paragraph 676(1)(a), (b) or (c) or subsection 676(3), the Attorney General may appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada (a) on any question of law on which a judge of the court of appeal dissents.”
5. As of right – habeas corpus (section 784 of the Criminal Code)
6. As of right – intergovernmental dispute (on decision by Federal Court of Appeal)
7. As of right – provincial reference
8. Federal reference
9. By leave
10. By leave (leave granted by court of appeal)
11. As of right – general
 - If the case reached the Supreme Court by right, other than through one of the pathways described above, this option should be selected.
12. Unknown

Panel Variables

The panel variables below are automatically generated fields based on other variables. No entry is required on the part of the coder.

34) panelSize

This variable contains the number of justices on the panel which heard the oral argument. It is automatically filled based on justicesPresent.

35) justicesPresent

This is a table, rather than a single variable, that contains a list of the justices present at an appeal, grouped by primaryCaseID. The codes associated with each justice are set out in Appendix C.

36) missingJustices

This is a table, rather than a single variable, that contains a list of the justices who were on the court at the time the case was heard, but were not on the particular panel that heard the case. The codes associated with each justice are set out in Appendix C.

Issue Variables

The database allows for multiple issues associated with a single appeal; there can be a maximum of three issues coded in a case. Most cases will have, or should be reduced to, one issue. In most appeals, there will be a single issue coded. Multiple issues should only be coded when it is clear that each issue is of indistinguishable importance and it would be clearly inaccurate to characterize the case as solely concerning one issue rather than the other. In cases involving multiple Charter challenges, the most significant one should be coded.

37) issueAreaCAN

This variable indicates the category of issue decided in the case. Issues will be automatically suggested once issueAreaCAN is selected. Acceptable values are:

1. Aboriginal law
2. Administrative law
3. Citizenship, immigration and refugee law
4. Civil procedure and the administration of justice
5. Civil rights and liberties, human rights
6. Commercial law
7. Contracts and obligations
8. Criminal law and procedure
9. Division of powers
10. Equity and trusts
11. Family law
12. Intellectual property law
13. International law
14. Labour and employment law
15. Privacy law and access to information
16. Property law
17. Regulatory law
18. Tax law
19. Tort law
20. Wills and estates
21. Miscellaneous

In the case of motions or applications directly at the Supreme Court, the issue on the motion or application should be coded, rather than the issue in the underlying appeal.

38) issueCAN

This variable indicates what the issue decided in the case was. Some issues can be described very specifically, eg, "Reasonableness of Verdict". Others will be only described with a broader label such as "Admiralty Law". The coder must use their judgment to pick which of the available values best describes the case at hand.

Some situations to take note of are:

- Occasionally, the Supreme Court decision will only state that it substantially agreed with the court of appeal. Where the appellate court focused on a specific issue, that should be coded (see R v Pakoo, 2001 SCC 28). If the appellate court only evaluated the trial judge's finding of the case, without emphasizing any issues in particular, then the issue can be coded as whether the verdict was reasonable (see R v ZL, 2001 SCC 16).
- If the Supreme Court focused on the role of the appellate court in reviewing a trial judge's decision, then the issue should be coded as appellate review (see R v Kerr, 2004 SCC 44).
- In cases involving judicial review of a minister, municipality, or other administrative decision maker's decision, generally values such as standard of review, procedural fairness, etc are coded. However, where the court focuses mostly on statutory interpretation, then the area of the law at issue should be coded (see Autobus Thomas Inc v Canada, 2001 SCC 64).

39) issueAreaUS

This variable indicates the category of issue decided in the case. Acceptable values are:

1. Criminal Procedure
2. Civil Rights
3. First Amendment
4. Due Process
5. Privacy
6. Attorneys
7. Unions
8. Economic Activity
9. Judicial Power
10. Federalism
11. Interstate Relations
12. Federal Taxation
13. Miscellaneous
14. Private Action

40) issueUS

This variable is coded similarly to issueCAN above. The coder's aim is to find the value that most closely describes the Canadian case, even if this value is not a perfect fit. In the event that no satisfactory value is found, 130020 – miscellaneous should be coded. However, this should only be done in cases where any other US value chosen would be a clearly inaccurate description of the issue.

41) juryInstructions

This variable indicates whether the issue arose in the context of a dispute over whether jury instructions were correct. The possible values are:

0. The appeal is not concerned with jury instructions
1. The appeal is concerned with jury instructions

42) decisionDirection

Indicating the ideological direction of the Supreme Court's decision, this is coded in the same way as lowerCourtDirection variable. The guidelines are reproduced in Appendix E. As with lowerCourtDirection, each issue will be assigned its own direction in cases involving multiple issues.

43) decisionDirectionDissent

The direction of the dissent is determined using the guidelines laid out in Appendix E. If there are multiple dissents which fall into both categories, only 1 – Dissent and majority in opposite directions would be coded. If the majority was coded as 3 – unspecifiable, then 0 – N/A would be coded here. The values are as follows:

0. N/A
1. Dissent and majority in opposite directions
2. Majority and dissent in same direction

44) majorityVotes

The size of the majority, i.e., the number of justices that voted for the majority result. This is not restricted to those justices that have signed on with the majority opinion.

45) dissentVotes

The number of judges voting against the result supported by the majority of the panel. If a judge is dissenting in part, he/she should be counted as dissenting for purposes of this variable.

46) issueID

This field is automatically generated to identify unique records for each issue. As noted above, there may be a one to many relationship between appeals and issues. The numbers in this field are not necessarily sequential (there may be gaps). While field is used to identify unique records for each issue, it should not be analyzed nor given any other significance.

47) caseIssueID

This field is automatically generated to number issues sequentially for each particular appeal. While this field can be used to identify how many issues are associated with a particular appeal, it should not be analyzed nor given any other significance.

Justices Votes

An example of a Justices Votes table is depicted in the image below. Each issue has its own table like the one shown below. The variables in the table describe the role that each justice played in the judgment. They are explained below.

| Justice Votes Information for: Case ID: <input type="text" value="5298"/> Issue ID: <input type="text" value="5990"/> Case Issue ID: <input type="text" value="1"/> | | | | | | | |

Judges who are present but who do not take part in the decision are included in this table; however, every variable would be coded as 0 – N/A with the exception of the variable justiceOnlyAtHearing.

48) justiceID

This variable indicates the identity of the justice in question using a unique number assigned to them based on when they were appointed to the Supreme Court. The codes associated with each justice are set out in Appendix C.

49) individualVoteType

This variable indicates the type of decision that the justice wrote or signed on to. The values are as follows:

1. Majority
 - Coded if the justice agreed with the majority in both reasoning and result. Includes justices that wrote separate concurring judgments which do not conflict with the majority judgment in reasoning or result. However, most separate concurring judgments will fall under 3 - Special Concurrence with the Majority.
2. Dissent
 - Coded when the justice did not agree with the majority in the result in whole or in part.
3. Concurrence
 - Coded when the justice agreed with the majority in the result, but wrote a separate opinion.

4. Judgment of the Court
 - Coded when the decision is unanimous and not signed by any individual justice(s).
5. Plurality
 - Coded when the justice signed on to the opinion with more votes than any other opinion but not enough votes to constitute a judgement of the majority of the panel.
 - There can sometimes be multiple decisions that attract a plurality. For example, where all five judges reach the same result but split 2-2-1 in their reasoning, all of the judges who voted with either of the groups of 2s would be coded as voting in the plurality.
6. Expressed no opinion
 - Coded when the justice explicitly states that he/she expresses no opinion in the case.

50) voteUS

This variable indicates the role each justice played in the judgment. Categories 6 and 7 are inapplicable to the Canadian context, and they should not be used.

1. Voted with majority or plurality
 - This is coded if the judge signed on to or wrote the majority opinion or an opinion receiving a plurality of the votes.
2. Dissent
 - Disagreed with the majority in the result.
3. Regular concurrence
 - This is coded where the justice agreed with the majority in the result, but wrote separate concurring reasons which did not conflict with the majority reasoning or result. This can only be coded where there is a clear majority (i.e., a judgment signed by a plurality of judges). Judges who have signed on to a regular concurrence would be coded under this category.
4. Special concurrence
 - Agreed with the majority in the result, but wrote separate concurring reasons in which he/she disagreed with the reasoning of the majority opinion (or in cases in which no clear majority opinion is present). In R v Wholesale Travel, under the issue regarding section 7, each justice who wrote their opinion, unless it was in dissent, is coded under 4 – Special Concurrence. Judges who signed on to these special concurrences, such as L'Heureux-Dube, Sopinka, Gonthier and Stevenson, would also be coded under here.
5. Judgment of the court
6. Dissent from a denial or dismissal of certiorari, or dissent from summary affirmation of an appeal
7. Jurisdictional dissent
8. Justice participated in an equally divided vote

51) justiceDecisionWriting

This variable indicates whether or not a judge wrote an opinion and if so, whether it was written alone, co-authored, and so on. For purposes of coding, delivering an oral judgement is the same as writing it.

Possible values are as follows:

0. N/A
 - The judge was present on the panel that heard the case but did not participate in the decision.

1. Wrote no opinion
2. Wrote opinion alone
 - This should be selected anytime a judge writes a separate opinion instead of signing on to another judge's opinion. That includes circumstances where their opinion contains nothing of significance beyond the fact that the writer agrees with another judgment or allows/dismisses the appeal.
3. Co-authored opinion
4. Participated in per curiam opinion (opinion given by "The Court")

52) individualVoteDirection

Each judge's disposition will be coded according to the guidelines found in Appendix E in the same way as lowerCourtDirection and decisionDirection above.

53) justiceWithMajorityResult

Whether the justice was part of the majority or the dissent with respect to the result on that issue.

0. N/A (where there is no majority as to the result)
1. Majority
2. Dissent

Justices dissenting in part on that issue are treated as part of the dissent. Justices writing or signing onto a concurring opinion are treated as part of the majority.

54) justiceSignedOnWith

This variable indicates which justice the justice in question signed on with.

If he/she wrote their own opinion, 0 – N/A is coded.

If he/she co-authored an opinion with one other justice, that justice is coded.

If he/she co-authored an opinion with more than one other justice, the most senior of the other justices is coded (ie, the other justice with the lowest identifying number).

If he/she signed on with an opinion co-authored by other justices, the most senior justice's identifier is coded.

If the decision is a decision of the Court without a particular justice identified as author, the most senior justice's identifier is coded.

If the multiple judges dissented but did not write reasons setting out the dissent, the most senior dissenting justice's identifier is coded.

55) justiceOnlyAtHearing

If the justice in question was present at the hearing but did not take part in the judgment, this variable should be coded 1 – True. Otherwise, it will be coded as 0 – False.

56) justiceEntryNum

This field indicates the order in which vote data was entered into the database. It should not be analyzed nor given any other significance.

Case Disposition

57) decisionProcedure

This variable indicates the procedural nature of the decision. The possible values for this variable are:

1. Appeal decision
2. Federal reference
3. Application, petition, or motion decision
4. Appeal rehearing decision
5. Other

Most decisions in the database are coded as 1 – Appeal decision.

58) decisionTypeCAN

This variable indicates the type of decision. In the list of values below, “unanimous” means unanimous in both reasoning and result. As a rule, if there is more than one opinion, the decision is not unanimous. The possible values for this variable are:

1. Unanimous decision
 - All of the judges sign on to a single set of reasons, authored by one or more judges.
2. Unanimous decision – judgment of the Court
 - All of the judges sign on to a single set of reasons, authored by the Court. No individual justice’s name is attached to the opinion.
3. Unanimous decision – oral judgment
 - All of the judges sign on to a single set of reasons, and both the decision and reasons are rendered orally. Immediately before the actual text of the judgement begins it will state if it is being delivered orally.
 - A decision should only be coded as an oral judgment when both the decision and the reasons are released orally. If the judgment is rendered orally with reasons to follow in writing, it should not be coded as an oral judgment.
4. Non-unanimous decision – majority
 - If not all of the judges signed on to a single set of reasons and result, but one judgment attracted a majority judgment.
5. Non-unanimous decision – plurality
 - No judgment attracted a majority of the votes. However, one judgement did attract more votes than any other judgement.
6. Non-unanimous decision – oral judgment
 - Any non-unanimous decision that was rendered orally.
 - A decision should only be coded as an oral judgment when both the decision and the reasons are released orally. If the judgment is rendered orally with reasons to follow in writing, it should not be coded as an oral judgment.

59) decisionTypeUS

This variable indicates the type of decision using the US Codebook's values. It is automatically filled based on decisionTypeCAN. Possible values are as follows:

1. Opinion of the court (orally argued, signed opinion)
2. Per curiam (with an opinion, but no oral argument)
3. Decrees (state boundary dispute)
4. Equally divided vote
5. Per curiam (orally argued, no individual justice signs opinion)
6. Judgment of the Court (orally argued, less than a majority of the participating justices agree with the opinion produced by the justice assigned to write the Court's opinion)

60) caseDispositionCAN

This variable indicates the treatment of the case by the Supreme Court. It is similar, but not identical, to the lowerCourtDisposition variable.

1. Affirmed
 - Where the appeal was dismissed.
 - This option should only be selected if the appeal was dismissed, but it does not fall into any of the other categories below.
 - If the case includes a cross-appeal at the Supreme Court of Canada, select 1 - Affirmed only if both the main appeal and the cross-appeal were dismissed.
2. Reversed
 - Where the appeal was allowed.
 - This option should only be selected if the appeal was allowed, but it does not fall into any of the other categories below.
 - If the appeal is allowed and remanded to the intermediate appellate court for further disposition, this option should be selected.
 - If the case includes a cross-appeal at the Supreme Court of Canada, select 2 - Reversed only if both the main appeal and the cross-appeal were allowed.
3. Reversed in part
 - Where the appeal was allowed in part. Except as described below, this should only be coded where the disposition specifically states that the appeal is being allowed in part.
 - If the case includes a cross-appeal at the Supreme Court of Canada, select 3 – Reversed in part if either the main appeal or cross-appeal were allowed, but not both.
 - If the appeal is allowed in part and remanded to the intermediate appellate court for further disposition, this option should be selected.
4. Affirmed and ordered new trial
 - Where the appeal was dismissed and a new trial was ordered. This could occur where an appellate court ordered a new trial, one of the parties appealed, and the Supreme Court affirmed the appellate court's order.

5. Reversed and ordered new trial
 - Where the appeal was allowed and a new trial was ordered
6. Affirmed and remanded to original decision-maker
 - Where the appeal was dismissed and the case sent back to the original decision-maker (either an administrative body or trial judge). This includes cases sent back for sentencing.
 - Where the appeal is dismissed and the case sent back to an intermediate appellate court for further disposition, this option should not be chosen. Instead, 1 – Affirmed should be chosen.
7. Reversed and remanded to original decision-maker
 - Where the appeal was allowed and the case sent back to the original decision-maker (either an administrative decision-maker or trial judge). This includes cases sent back for sentencing.
 - Where the appeal is allowed and the case sent back to an intermediate appellate court for further disposition, this option should not be chosen. Instead, 2 – Reversed should be chosen.
8. Reversed and affirmed in part and remanded to original decision-maker
 - Where the appeal was allowed in part and sent back to the original decision-maker (either an administrative decision-maker or trial judge). This includes cases sent back for sentencing.
 - Where the appeal is allowed in part and dismissed in part, and the case sent back to an intermediate appellate court for further disposition, this option should not be chosen.
9. Modified
 - Where the Court dismissed the appeal but modified the judgement of the lower court in some way, eg, decreasing or increasing the amount of damages, decreasing or increasing the length of a sentence.
10. Unusual disposition
 - Where the disposition did not fit into any of the other categories.
11. Application, petition or motion granted
 - Where the action was not an appeal of a lower court decision but a motion or action commenced in the Supreme Court, and was granted. Applications and motions argued in front of the Supreme Court include, among others, those asking for leave to intervene and re-scheduling of a rehearing date. If multiple motions are brought before the court and only some of them are granted, this value is coded.
12. Application, petition or motion dismissed
 - Where the action was not an appeal of a lower court decision but a motion commenced in the Supreme Court, and was dismissed/denied.
13. Federal Reference
 - Where the case is a reference question posed by the federal government.

61) caseDispositionUS

This indicates the Supreme Court's treatment of the case using the system described in the US Codebook. Possible values are as follows:

1. Stay, petition, or motion granted.
2. Affirmed (includes modified)
3. Reversed

4. Reversed and remanded
5. Vacated and remanded
6. Affirmed and reversed (or vacated) in part
7. Affirmed and reversed (or vacated) in part and remanded
8. Vacated
9. Petition denied or appeal dismissed
10. Certification to a lower court
11. No disposition

In the event that the case was a reference question posed by the Federal Government, 11 – No disposition should be selected, and unusualDispositionUS should be coded as 1 – unusual disposition.

62) unusualDispositionUS

This variable indicates whether the Supreme Court's disposition was such that it cannot be accurately classified using the values under caseDispositionUS. If this variable is coded as 1, caseDispositionUS should still be coded as accurately as can be done under the circumstances.

0. No unusual disposition specified
1. Unusual disposition

63) declareUnconCAN

This variable indicates whether legislation or government action has been declared unconstitutional in whole or in part. Ultra vires is a Latin phrase meaning “beyond the powers”. When used in reference to legislation, it means that the law was outside the authority of the body that passed it.

If constitutionality is not at issue in the case at hand, 0 – N/A is coded. (Note that this differs from the American approach where No declaration of unconstitutionality is coded instead). Similarly, where constitutional arguments are raised but no party impugns the constitutionality of a law, regulation, or state conduct, 0 – N/A should be coded. Examples of situations where 0 – N/A should be coded include when the common law is modified to be constitutionally compliant, where legislation is interpreted in a particular manner to be constitutionally compliant, or where a particular constitutional provision agreed to be valid and operative but not applicable in a particular circumstance. By contrast, if a law is found to be unconstitutional, and the remedy is to read the offending provision down, the applicable declaration of unconstitutionality should be selected.

When a provincial law is declared inoperative to the extent that it conflicts with a federal law, 8 – No declaration of unconstitutionality is coded. If a law is found to be unacceptable under one potential constitutional head of power but acceptable under another, it will not be coded as having been declared unconstitutional. A declaration of unconstitutionality is only coded if the law or conduct actually conflicts with the Constitution.

Any provisions found to be unconstitutional because of non-conformity with the Constitution Act, 1867, should be coded using the appropriate ultra vires field. Any provisions found to be unconstitutional contrary to the Constitution Act, 1982 should be coded as violating the Charter, even if those rights guarantees fall outside the Charter as narrowly construed (eg, violations of aboriginal groups' section 35 rights).

The Canadian Bill of Rights is not constitutional. Any law rendered inoperative because of it has not been declared unconstitutional. Similarly, for the purposes of this database, laws other than the Constitution Act, 1867 and the Constitution Act, 1982 are not considered to be constitutional, even if Courts have described them as having constitutional status. Laws falling into this category would include the Manitoba Act, 1870, treaties with indigenous groups, and

The values are as follows:

0. Constitutionality not at issue
1. Federal law or regulation ultra vires
2. Provincial law or regulation ultra vires
3. Municipal law or regulation ultra vires
 - This option should only be selected if the municipal law or regulation is ultra vires the Constitution Act, 1867. If it is ultra vires because it goes beyond the municipality's authority under its enabling statute, but no constitutional issue is raised, 0 – Constitutionality not at issue should be selected instead.
4. Federal law or regulation violating Charter
5. Provincial law or regulation violating Charter
6. Municipal law or regulation violating Charter
7. Government action violating Charter
 - This option should be selected in criminal cases where there is state conduct that has been held to the Charter, such as a warrantless search in breach of section 8, a breach of the Crown's disclosure obligations, or an unreasonable delay. A breach of aboriginal rights under section 35 by state conduct would also be coded with this option, as would a breach of the duty to consult.
 - In cases where there is unconstitutional state conduct, this option should be selected regardless of whether a remedy is granted. For example, if the state conducts a warrantless search, but the evidence is admitted under section 24(2) of the Charter, this option should still be selected.
8. No declaration of unconstitutionality

64) declareUnconUS

This variable indicates whether a piece of legislation has been declared unconstitutional using the system described in the US Codebook. It is automatically filled based on declareUnconCAN. The possible values are:

1. No declaration of unconstitutionality
2. Act of Congress (Act of Parliament) declared unconstitutional
3. State or territorial law, reg, or const. provision unconstitutional
4. Municipal or other local ordinance unconstitutional

1 – No declaration of unconstitutionality is used both in cases where the court did not declare a law to be unconstitutional and where the issue of constitutionality was not raised. This is different from the approach followed under the Canadian version of this variable (see above).

If government action has been found to violate the Charter, 1 – No declaration of unconstitutionality is coded given that there is not an adequate comparable US value.

65) partyWinning

This variable indicates the Supreme Court's disposition is favourable towards the appellant. The appellant need not prevail completely, but it must be clear that the overall disposition is in their favour. In general, the appeal being allowed is a favourable disposition for the appellant. The values are as follows:

1. No favourable disposition for appellant (respondent wins)
2. Favourable disposition for appellant (appellant wins)
3. Disposition unclear (unclear or mixed result)

If the case in question is a reference, the coder should code 1 or 2 if the outcome is clearly either unfavourable or favourable for the government (federal or provincial) that is posing the question. If the outcome does not seem clearly beneficial or clearly negative for the party posing the question, 3 should be coded.

If the decision is a decision on a motion or application, this should be coded on the basis of who was the moving party. That is, if the moving party was successful on the motion or application 2 should be coded, while if the responding party was successful, 1 should be coded.

66) precedentOverrule

This variable indicates whether or not a Supreme Court precedent has been explicitly overruled in the judgement. For cases from the mid-1980's onward, this information is conveniently located in the headnotes. For earlier cases, the most convenient way is likely to be to search the text of the judgement for the words "overrule" or "overruled". A precedent that has been "distinguished" has not been overruled. The values are as follows:

- 0. No determinable formal alteration of precedent
- 1. Precedent formally altered

67) decisionUnanimous

This variable indicates whether the decision was completely unanimous in both reasoning and result. Possible values:

- 0. Non-unanimous
- 1. Unanimous

A decision will only be unanimous in both reasoning and result if there is a single judgment onto which every judge subscribes. If one or more judges dissent as to the result, this should be coded as 0 – non-unanimous. In addition, if one or more judges agree with the majority as to the result but write concurring reasons, this should be coded as 0 – non-unanimous.

68) majorityWriter

This variable contains the name of the justice that wrote the majority judgment, i.e., a judgment attracting the support of more than half of the panel hearing the case. If there is no one judgment with more than half the support of the panel, then this variable will be coded as 0 – N/A. In cases where the majority judgment is co-authored, the most senior of the authors is coded, i.e., the one with the lowest number. In cases where the judgment is the judgment of the court without a specific author, the most senior of the authors is coded, i.e., the one with the lowest number.

This is still coded even if the judgment has been given orally.

69) dissentWriter

This variable indicates the judge who authored the dissenting judgment, which is one which disagrees with the result that the majority of the court has endorsed. If the opinion is co-authored, then only the name of the first judge is coded. If there is no dissenting judgment present or more than one dissenting judgment available, then this variable should be coded as 0 – N/A.

If the decision was rendered orally but refers to one judge as having dissented, then the name of the judge who dissented should be listed here, even if they did not write a separate set of the reasons. If the decision was rendered orally and multiple judges dissent, the most senior of the dissenting judges is coded, i.e., the one with the lowest number.

Appendix E – Determining Direction

The values for determining the direction of a judge's vote on an issue are:

1. Conservative
2. Liberal
3. Unspecifiable

The characterization of what constitutes a "conservative" or "liberal" vote is often ambiguous and can be overly simplistic. However, it also has some value and is a feature of the US Supreme Court Database, so we include it here.

The guidelines below have been adapted from those found in the US Codebook in order to fit the Canadian context.

Additional criteria were also added. As a general assumption, each Charter issue is looked at in its entirety. That is, even if the court found something to have violated the Charter but ultimately upheld it under section 1, this would generally be considered a conservative decision.

1. In the context of issues pertaining to criminal procedure, the Charter, procedural fairness, privacy, and lawyers, liberal (2) =
 - pro-person accused or convicted of crime, or denied a jury trial
 - pro-human rights claimant, especially those exercising controversial human rights. Even in cases involving freedom of expression for a corporation, this would still be coded as liberal.
 - pro-child or juvenile
 - pro-indigent
 - pro-aboriginal
 - pro-affirmative action
 - pro-maternal freedom in issues relating to pregnancy, rights of unborn children, abortion, etc.
 - pro-socially/economically/otherwise disadvantaged party
 - anti-government in the context of procedural fairness, except for de facto expropriation cases where a pro-government, anti-owner vote is considered liberal except in criminal forfeiture cases or those where the taking is pro-business
 - pro-accountability and/or anti-corruption in campaign spending
 - pro-privacy
 - pro-disclosure in Access to Information Act issues except for employment and student records
 - pro-minority language rights
 - pro solicitor-client privilege
 - pro-immigrant/refugee claimant

conservative (1) = the reverse of above
2. In the context of issues pertaining to unions and economic activity, liberal (2) =
 - pro-union except in union antitrust where liberal = pro-competition

- anti-business
- anti-employer
- pro-competition
- pro-liability
- pro-injured person
- pro-indigent
- pro-small business vis-a-vis large business
- pro-debtor
- pro-bankrupt
- pro-Aboriginal
- pro-environmental protection
- pro-economically disadvantaged person
- pro-consumer
- pro-accountability in governmental corruption
- pro-original grantee, purchaser, or occupant in provincial and territorial land claims
- anti-union member or employee vis-a-vis union
- anti-union in union antitrust
- anti-union in union or closed shop
- pro-trial in arbitration
- pro-state in state and territorial land claims

conservative (1) = reverse of above

3. In the context of issues pertaining to judicial power, liberal (2) =

- pro-exercise of judicial power (courts willing to take jurisdiction in matters of competing jurisdiction, etc)

conservative (1) = reverse of above.

For other issues like estoppel, res judicata, code as unspecifiable (3) unless the context of the case (i.e., it involves unions) clearly indicates a direction (see for example Noël v Société d'énergie de la Baie James, 2001 SCC 39 where the decision was anti-employee).

4. In the context of issues pertaining to federalism, liberal (2) =

- pro-federal power
- pro-executive power in executive/congressional disputes
- anti-province

conservative (1) = reverse of above

5. In the context of issues pertaining to taxation, liberal (2) = pro-government; conservative (1) = pro-taxpayer

6. In inter-provincial relations, judicial review of administrative boards and tribunals (see Kovach v British Columbia (Worker's Compensation Board)), professional regulation, cases involving sovereign immunity and miscellaneous issues not described above, unspecifiable (3) for all such cases.
7. In the context of family law, liberal (2) =
 - pro-state intervention to protect childrenIn virtually all other family law cases, direction should be coded as unspecifiable (3).
8. In the context of libel, slander, obscenity or relating to protection of sources, liberal (2) =
 - pro-journalist
 - pro-access in info (i.e., reducing a publication ban)conservative (1) = reverse of above
9. In cases involving copyright, patents, intellectual property law, telecommunications, generally code as unspecifiable (3) unless it falls into one of the other situations already listed.
10. In cases involving contracts, liberal (2) =
 - punitive damages awarded
 - equitable remedies awarded
 - pro-liability/pro-coverage for insurance contractsconservative (1) = reverse of above.
11. In cases involving class actions, liberal (2) =
 - pro-liability
 - certification awardedconservative (1) = reverse of above.
